

for STAT8801 students

Today I'm pleased to welcome Chandra Erdman to class. Chandra grew up here in Minnesota, obtained a PhD in statistics from Yale in 2009, and now works in the Missing Data group at the U.S. Census Bureau. She'll be talking today about what the Census Bureau does and what it's like to work there as a statistician.

Please think of (at least) one question to ask, and (at least) one interesting thing you heard today, and briefly write them down below. Leave this sheet on the desk by the door at the end of class.

Name: _____

Write down (at least) one question you'd like to ask.

Write down one interesting thing you heard.
