

Questions, Questions, and More Questions

We'll start by watching Video 4, in which Dr. Derr works with the client on defining the expectations of how they will work together.

Then, brainstorm a list of questions you might want to ask a client. Consider background questions, technical questions, personal questions, business questions, etc.

Name: _____

Name a question that was discussed today that was new to you and that you think would be particularly important. Describe why you think it would be important.
